

Table of Contents: The Matrilineal Nature of Bronze Age Cretan Society

Gloria y'Edynak

2023

Introduction	p. 1
Matrilineal Framework	p. 3
a. Definition of matrilineage
b. Women and land
c. Segmented lineages
d. Women as corporate knowledge keepers
e. Marriage and Residence Pattern
f. Authority within the matrilineage
g. Authority in the village or site
h. Summary of authority in matrilineal societies
i. Ancestress veneration, reincarnation, status of women, and cultic worship
The Matrilineal Framework can Generate Predictions for the Study of Material Remains of Archaeological Horticultural Societies	p. 21
Nature of Matrilineal Society in Bronze Age Crete: A Theory	p. 25
The Corporate Nature of Matrilineage in Bronze Age Crete	p. 32
The Corporate Matrilineal Model Explains Persistent Regionalism in Bronze Age Crete	p. 35
Matrilineal Segmentation and Budding	p. 39
Lineage Ranking, Landless Segments, and Minimal Segment Migration (Budding)	p. 41
a. The Minangkabau Matrilineal System and Migration of its Minimal Segments	p. 44
b. The Ashanti Matrilineal System and the Attachment of slaves to the Husband's Lineage	p. 48
Matrilineal Budding Provides a Mechanism for the Expansion and Contraction of Settlements in Bronze Age Crete	p. 49
a. Knossos: The Late Neolithic Core Settlement probably dispersed its lower segments throughout Crete	p. 50
b. Matrilineal Segmentation Provides the Mechanism for Expansion and contraction of Settlements in the Western Mesara during the Bronze Age	p. 52

Table of Contents: The Matrilineal Nature of Bronze Age Cretan Society

Gloria y'Edynak	2023
The Number of Ranked Matrilineages in Bronze Age Crete		p. 58
a. Established Houses
b. Knossos
c. Western Mesara
d. Eastern Crete
Matrilineage and Village Pattern in Historic Societies		p. 75
Matrilineages and Wards within Bronze Age Cretan Settlements		p. 78
Historic Matrilineal Household Economy and Authority		p. 83
Economy, Possible Division of Labor, Social Roles And Authority in Bronze Age Crete		p.88
Matrilineal Segmentation Explains the Decentralized Economy and Trade in the Mesaran Bronze Age (Crete)		p.95
Religion in Preliterate Societies		p. 100
The European Neolithic Roots of Bronze Age Cretan Religion		p. 101
a. Sacred Positions of Water, Snake, and Bird
b. The Cosmic Eg., Symbol of the Goddess of Periodic Regeneration
c. The Cross and the Circle
d. The Bull and Horns of Consecration
e. The Honey Bee and the Butterfly
f. The Bee/Butterfly Goddess of Periodic Regeneration
g. Cretan Religion as a Culmination of Old European Belief System		p. 118
h. Cretan Cultic World View and Ethos		p. 120
Bronze Age Cretan Cults: Ancestor Veneration, Divinity Worship and Initiation Rites		p. 124
Ancestor Worship in Matrilineal Societies		p. 127
Ancestress/Ancestor Veneration in Bronze Age Crete Cretan Primary Burial Cretan Secondary Burial or Ancestor Selection		p. 131

Table of Contents: The Matrilineal Nature of Bronze Age Cretan Society

Gloria y'Edynak

2023

Living Ancestral Spirits

Feasting with the Ancestors/Ancestresses

Generalized Ancestral Spirits

Sacred Mountain Tops (Peak Sanctuaries) and their Caves	p. 140
Social Function of Initiation Ceremonies in Southwestern Pueblo Indians	p. 144
Bronze Age Cretan Initiation Rites at Sacred Mountain Peaks and Caves:	p. 145
Psychro Cave: An Example of Regional Divinity Worship and Initiation Rites	p. 150
Cretan Cult	p. 154
Cretan Symbols of the Goddess of Periodic Regeneration	p. 155
Earliest Divinity Worship Occurred on Mountain Peaks and Caves	p. 158
The Social Uses of Open Courts, Closed Courts and Court Center Buildings	p. 160
Cult Architecture derives from Caves	p. 164
Middle Minoan I and II: A time of Widespread Wealth, Decentralized Artistic Creativity, Trade and Cultic Activity	p. 167
Villas/Estates: Established Houses of the Heads of Matrilineages	p. 170
Established Houses were Widespread in Crete during Early Neopalatial	p. 174
Knossian Power	p.177
The Knossian Northcentral Region and its Established Houses	p. 178
The Matrilineal Basis for Cretan Woman/Priestess's Power	p.184
The Knossian Houses of Priestesses	p. 186
Head Priestess(es) Moved into the Knossos Court Center	p.189
Knossos Extends its Religious Power and Influence during MMIII and LMIA	p. 191
The West Wing of Knossos: The Sanctuary of the Divine Priestess	p. 194
The Pageantry of the Seated Goddess (or High Priestess), LMIA	p. 197
Have Goddess (Enthroned Female Authority); Will travel	p. 199

Table of Contents: The Matrilineal Nature of Bronze Age Cretan Society_

Gloria y'Edynak

2023

Burials of Knossian Priestesses	p. 202
Persistence of Cretan Religion	p.205
The End of Cretan Matrilineal Established Houses	p. 208
Conclusions on Bronze Age Cretan Civilization	p. 211
Appendix One: Egalitarian Hopi Clans Individually Control Rituals and Ceremonies that Regulate Social Life	p. 221
a. Tribal Initiation among the Hopi
b. The Third and Final Tribal Initiation for Boys among the Hopi
Appendix Two: Hierarchical Priesthoods: Ceremony and Authority Among the Zuni Indians	p. 228
Appendix Three: Centralized Religious and Political Integration in the Acoma Southwestern Indians	p. 233
Acoma Initiation
Acknowledgement

Table of Contents: The Matrilineal Nature of Bronze Age Cretan Society_

Gloria y'Edynak

2023